In Gibbs et al., Long-Acting Reversible Contraception Counseling and Use for Older Adolescents and Nulliparous Women, Journal of Adolescent Health 2016;59:703–709, doi: 10.1016/j.jadohealth.2016.07.018, a source of funding was inadvertently omitted from the article. The corrected statement of funding sources is below:

Funding Sources: The authors thank the William and Flora Hewlett Foundation for supporting the study. The National Campaign to Prevent Teen and Unplanned Pregnancy provided funding to produce the patient education video. Support was also received from the Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, Office of Research on Women’s Health, Bridging Interdisciplinary Research on Women’s Health grant K12 HD052163. Results from these analyses were presented at the Annual Meetings of the American Public Health Association, November 2014, New Orleans, LA.

https://doi.org/10.1016/j.jadohealth.2017.10.012